If you have recently travelled overseas, have been in close contact to someone with COVID-19 or have been issued a stay at home order, do not enter the premises.

All members and guests will be required to register themselves on entry, including supply of a valid mobile phone number. These details may be shared with NSW Health Authorities if required.

All members and guests will be required to have their temperature checked and you may be asked questions regarding possible symptoms.

On entry, all patrons must sanitise their hands thoroughly. You must also wash and sanitise regularly throughout the duration of your visit.

Practise appropriate hygiene measures, including covering your mouth and nose with a flexed elbow or tissue when coughing or sneezing.

All patrons must practise social distancing, maintaining a minimum of 1.5 metres distance from each other (members of the same household are excluded). Any patrons crowding in any area of the venue will be asked to disperse.

All patrons must adhere to all new entry/exit regulations, barriers and queue management which have been designed to assist with social distancing.

We request that patrons utilise cashless payments at our restaurants and bars where possible. There is an increased cleaning regime, however if you would like a table, machine or bathroom facility cleaned and sanitised, please ask one of our friendly staff.

Alcohol may be purchased without the consumption of food; however, patrons must remain seated.

Each Blacktown Workers Club Group venue is subject to a venue-wide capacity, as well as other limits within each dining outlets and other areas. These numbers are subject to change at any time.

Management reserves the right to refuse entry or request the removal of any patron not complying with the above conditions of entry.
